Mises Institute Student Programs Code of Conduct

The Mises Institute has a code of conduct for student programs. We expect students to abide by this code and exhibit professional behavior at all times. In any academic setting, civility and collegiality are vitally important. As a student, you should conduct yourself as a representative of the Mises Institute. This includes both public and private settings: at the Institute, lodging location, restaurants, and any establishments you visit during evenings or free time.

The Mises Institute offers programs and events to students for the sake of the students’ own learning. To minimize distractions to other students and to show respect to invited speakers, we ask all attendees to abide by this code of conduct.

All students agree to these rules by submitting a student scholarship application:

1. Show respect toward fellow students, faculty, guests, Institute staff, and vendors/contractors—both in-person and in online/social media interactions.
2. Dress in a manner appropriate to the circumstances. The dress code for events is communicated to all attendees prior to the event and can be found on printed schedules. Provocative clothing or offensive slogans are prohibited.
3. Sexual contact between Mises University students, or between students and faculty/staff, is prohibited.
4. Alcohol and tobacco consumption is permitted for students 21 and over, but never in excess. Loud or drunken behavior is prohibited.
5. Illegal drugs are prohibited.
6. Tobacco smoking is allowed only in designated outdoor areas.
7. Finally, students on scholarship are expected to attend all classes and presentations (except those indicated as optional). Come prepared to learn and participate.
